SEVERE ACCUSATIONS.

The Cause of the Mining Riots Was Starvation,

And the Owners are Responsible for It—So Says Hon. John McBride.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 31.—Hon. John McBride, president of the United Mine Workers of America, said today that the direct cause of the Pittsburg mining riot was starvation. The miners hold the operators responsible for that condition. Being desperate, the miners destroyed property. The Pittsburg district is only part of the competitive field, comprising the mines of Northern Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and part of West Virginia. A fair relative price has been paid for mining. This relative price was based upon competitive grounds. Neither the selling price of coal in the market, nor the price of mining in any part of the competitive field had been reduced when the Pittsburg operators forced a reduction in the price paid the miners. The price of mining at Pittsburg finally dropped from 79 cents, the price on the competitive basis per ton, to as low as 40 cents. This depressed state of the coal trade gave the miners less than half work. It was difficult for them to live on their earnings. With mining prices per ton as low as 40, 50 and 60 cents and credit denied at the stores, the men were enduring some of the hardships of hunger. The prices of coal was also cut. Lump coal selling at $1 10 per ton f. o. b. dropped from 65 to 50 cents per ton. The run of the mine is selling at 50 cents f. o. b. Nut and slack, formerly profitable, is now a dead weight. On account of these things at Pittsburg, West Virginia miners have been compelled to accept reduced wages. Mr McBride says the Ohio mines are practically closed and that the Ohio miners must also accept wages below the scale to meet Pittsburg rates or do without work. He closes by rapping the knuckles of the men who brought the non-English speaking miners here because they were supposed to be more tractable than the native born, or English speaking workmen, and are now abusing the Huns because they are desperate on account of a lack of work at rates necessary to keep them in food.

FIGHTERS IN TROUBLE.

International Law and Order League Will Press Their Prosecution.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. Jan. 31.—The Law and Order league has resolved to make it lively for the principals and aiders and abettors in the Corbett-Mitchell prize fight. The local agent of the league says they hold that the injunction granted by Judge Call was an evasion of prescribed statutes and if the state authorities don't very soon bring the matter up for review in the supreme court the league will do so.

The International League has placed ample funds at the disposal of its local agents for this purpose and has given instructions for the suit to be pushed forward at the first sight of weakening on the part of the state. The league is determined that such an exhibition as took place in this city Thursday shall not be repeated in the country if means can be found to prevent it. J. E. T. Bowden, manager of the Duval Athletic club, denies emphatically that he has left the Duval Athletic club.

"And," said he, "there is not a word of truth in the statement that the club has disbanded. We have found that prize fights are not against the law, and after all this trouble and expense it would be foolish for me to pull out."

MAKE TELEPHONES AT OCONTO.

G. M. Jarvis, of Chicago, Makes a Proposition to That City.

OCONTO, Wis., Jan. 31.—The common council of Oconto met in special session last night for the purpose of conferring with G. M. Jarvis, of Chicago, who is looking for a location to erect a plant for the manufacture of telephones. One of his propositions is that in consideration of the city's giving him a bonus of $10,000 he will build a $30,000 telephone factory, employ from seventy-five to a hundred men and women and at the expiration of five years, should he have failed in his undertaking, the $10,000 bonus will be returned to the city.

A DISGRACEFUL ROW

Which Ends in the Shooting of a Policeman.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Policeman Arado was shot and killed this morning by a fellow officer named Bacon. The encounter followed a dance and took place in a saloon near by the dance where all had repaired for refreshments. Officer Arado interfered in a quarrel between his brother and Bacon, whereupon the latter drew a revolver and shot Arado in the head, killing him instantly. Bacon was arrested.

Execution Postponed.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—The execution of Vaillant, the anarchist who, on Dec. 9, threw a bomb into the chamber of deputies, for which crime he was tried and sentenced to death, was to have taken place today but has been postponed pending a final appeal to President Carnot.

Sold at Sheriff's Sale.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 31.—The leaseholds and plant of the Buffalo Mining company, at Negaunee, Mich., have been sold at sheriff's sale to Price McKinney, receiver for Corrigan, Ives & Co., of this city. The purchase price is $230,001. Mr. McKinney also bought all the machinery and personal property at $35,000. The property thus virtually passes into the possession of Corrigan, Ives & Co. The Buffalo mine is one of the best producers on the Marquette range and under Schlesinger control produced nearly 400,000 tons annually.

WILL RESIGN.

Mr. Gladstone Will Retire to Private Life.

Advanced Age and Disappointment at the Rejection of the Home Rule Bill the Cause.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Pall Mall Gazette declares that it learns from a source, in which it has every confidence, that Mr. Gladstone has finally decided to resign office almost immediately. According to the Pall Mall Gazette, Mr. Gladstone will announce his decision in a letter to the queen before the re-assembling of parliament. This decision is said to be due to a sense of his advanced age and the great strain the late arduous session imposed upon him. Finally, it is said, Mr. Gladstone is deeply disappointed at the rejection of the home rule bill. The Pall Mall Gazette adds that it is understood that domestic pressure has considerably influenced Mr. Gladstone in his decision.

OF UNSOUND MIND.

Verdict of the Jury in the Case of Geo. W. Lawrence.

WABASH, Ind., Jan. 31.—George W. Lawrence, president of the Lawrence National bank at North Manchester, this county, was yesterday found to be of unsound mind by a jury in the Wabash circuit court. Five witnesses were examined, and all testified that he was deranged. Mr. Lawrence has been in failing health for a year. In the past six months he has grown reserved, seldom talking. When old friends called he would run to the furnace room in his residence and remain until they were gone. He imagined himself bankrupt and requested his attendants to kill him and some of his family. Over ten years ago his mind was affected and he disappeared. A reward of $500 for information of his whereabouts and he was found in a Missouri town peddling spectacles, and with considerable money derived from the sales. Mr. Lawrence is a heavy stockholder in the state bank of Warsaw and the Lawrence national, and is one of the best known bankers in northern Indiana. He is worth $150,000. His son-in-law, August C. Mills, has been appointed guardian.

INHUMAN TREATMENT OF CHILD.

Divorced Wife Charged With Torturing Her Three-Year-Old Boy.

MUNCIE, Ind., Jan. 31.—James Lenning yesterday came her from Portland and caused the arrest of his divorced wife, Ethel Royce, on the charge of inhuman cruelty. It is alleged that the woman held the fingers of her three-year-old son against a red hot stove until they were fairly cooked. The woman says she burned the child's fingers to chastise him for throwing burning paper on the floor. The case has caused much indignation.

DRIVEN ASHORE.

The Gertie E. Foster in a Distressful Situation.

HALIFAX, Jan. 31.—In the heavy gale late last night the schooner Gertie E. Foster, of Gloucester, was driven ashore at Strawberry Point, about four miles below Liverpool, N. N., and will probably prove a total loss. There were sixteen men in the crew, five of whom were drowned in trying to reach the shore in their dory. The remaining eleven men were taken off the wreck this morning.

HAWAII'S FUTURE.

She Will Be Associated With the United States.

Samuel Parker, Member of ex-Queen Liliuokalani's Cabinet, Admits as Much to the Public.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 31.—Samuel Parker, member of ex-Queen Liliuokalani's cabinet, sailed today for Honolulu. He has been here several weeks on private business. Before leaving today he gave the Examiner a letter to the American people, which may be deemed an authoritative statement of the purpose of the royalists of his country. Parker is half white and is the leading royalist of Hawaii. He says he wants Hawaii as it was. By that he means the country during the period of constitutional monarchy from 1859 to 1893.

He defends the course of the queen in refusing to grant amnesty to officers of the provisional government, saying that the constitution forbids such action on her part without the consent of the privy council. He says the Hawaiians were satisfied with their government, and, if given an opportunity to express their opinions, will decide, by an overwhelming majority, in favor of the queen. When the time comes for them to declare their decision they will be found ready for the declaration. Parker adds that he is not unmindful of the ultimate destiny of Hawaii. It will become associated with the United States by a protective treaty, and that no foreign country other than the United States can have a voice in the affairs of Hawaii.

While appreciating this destiny the time is not now ripe for its fulfilment. Parker cites the contract labor system in vogue at Hawaii as an argument against annexation. The United States can do but one of two things: Either it will restore the queen to the throne or else leave the settlement of the politics of Hawaii to the people of Hawaii. Oligarchy, supported by a few bayonets, cannot be maintained against the wishes of nine-tenths of the people. The letter is signed "Samuel Parker, premier of Hawaii."

LAND GRABBING SCHEME FAILS.

Wisconsin Lawyers Prevented From Making $200,000.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 31.—The supreme court today rendered a decision of great public interest. Last June Benjamin Sweet, of Milwaukee, and John O'Connor, of Waukesha, made application at the state land office for the purchase of about 42,000 acres of public lands and insisted on depositing funds to secure the purchase. The land commissioners, however, denied the application on the ground that the lands had been constituted part of a public park by a state law. This was a fact well known to Sweet and O'Connor, but they carried the case to the supreme court, claiming that the law setting the lands aside was unconstitutional, in so far as under the fundamental law these lands were classed as school lands, the proceeds of whose sale were to go to certain educational purposes, and that, therefore, the legislature could not properly set them aside as a park. The supreme court today knocked out that theory. Had their scheme worked Sweet and O'Connor would have cleared up $200,000.

BUD STONE TO HANG.

Warden Patten is Making Arrangements for the Execution.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 31.—Warden J. B. Patten, of the prison south, was in the city today making final arrangements for the hanging of murderer Bud Stone. If the execution takes place, and there seems to be no doubt that it will, it will be the first hanging ever held in an Indiana penitentiary. The warden is making every precaution to make a success of his maiden effort. With regard to the murderer's demeanor in prison, the warden said: "There are a good many stories afloat to the effect that Stone spends a great part of his time praying and crying on the Lord to save him and all that. Such talk as that is false. If he prays he does it when nobody is looking. He appears to be penitent and claims that his sins have been forgiven."

POISONED COFFEE

Causes the Death of a Man and Wife at Jackson.

JACKSON, Mo., Jan. 31.—W. Y. Walker, well known throughout this section as senior member of the firm of Walker & Co., with his wife, was poisoned last evening at supper in some mysterious manner. Mr. and Mrs. Walker both died this morning. The poison is supposed to have been administered in their coffee, but how, there is no clew. Walker is not known to have had an enemy, and so far as known no one was in their house for several hours previous to the fatal meal. An investigation is in progress.

CHARGED TOO MUCH FOR ITS GAS

Indianapolis Company Fined $25 and Costs for Extortion.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 31.—Police Judge Stubbs found the Indianapolis Gas company guilty of violating the gas ordinance, and assessed a fine of $25 and costs. The case was brought by Thaddeus Curry, who was charged $2 for a No. 7 cook stove. The ordinance fixes the rate at $1.25, but the company contended that the stove was used for heating as well as cooking purposes. Upon Mr. Curry's refusal to pay the demand made the gas was turned off. The decision of Judge Stubbs, coming at a time when many persons are using but one stove for economy's sake, is important. He holds that the action of the company is in direct violation of the ordinance, as the latter does not specify how much gas is to be used or how many rooms are to be heated. He says that the company has no more right to charge over the specified rates for several rooms than it has to charge over rates for a large family.

MORE ARRESTS.

Thirty Desperate Foreigners Captured at Bower Hill.

They Were the Men Who Wanted to Raise the Flag of Anarchy and Declare for Blood.

MANSFIELD, Pa., Jan. 31.—Twenty deputies under Chief Lowrey, made a raid on the anarchists settlement, at Bower Hill, this morning and arrested ten Slavs and Italians. They are regarded as desperate men and are now in jail. They were the men who wanted to hold a meeting on Monday to raise the red flag and declare for blood. Their meeting house was searched for dynamite and arms, but only two guns were found. Another raid under Deputy Haws and ten assistants was made during the night and thirty foreigners, suspected of burning the Essen tipple on Saturday, were captured.

The men were all armed and several resisted arrest, but no one was injured. They were Russians, Poles and Italians. Quiet prevails throughout the region, but the mines are still under guard. A large number of Slavs applied for work today and this is looked upon as a guarantee that they have given up the fight and are willing to abide by the laws. A meeting to consider the strike will be held by the miners at Mansfield this afternoon.

TWO CASUALTIES.

Fire Damp Explosion Injures Five Miners.

A Broken Rail Precipitates Two Coaches, Loaded With People, Down an Embankment.

FAYETTE, Pa., Jan. 31.—An explosion of fire damp occurred in the mines of the Fayette coal company at 5:30 o'clock this morning in which five miners were badly burned about the head, face and hands. The names of the miners burned are: Thomas Taylor, Samuel White, C. C. Hamilton, Chas. Matthews and Lewis DeWalt. While the injuries are serious, they are not considered fatal. The explosion was caused by an open light coming into contact with a small body of gas which had accumulated during the night.

CAIRO, Ala., Jan. 31.—A broken rail on the Central Georgia railroad wrecked a passenger train here last night. Two coaches and an express car rolled down a twenty-five foot embankment. The injured are:

Isaac Stevermam, New York, badly cut in back and head.

R. A. Koerber, express messenger, badly mashed and leg crushed.

James McIntyre, Dadeville, Ga., back hurt.

Several others received minor injuries.

WHO OWNS THE LANDS?

An Old Deed Which Will Cause Much Trouble.

It Places in Doubt the Ownership of Valuable Lands Claimed by the L. S., C. & P. Road.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 31.—A question as to the ownership of valuable lands claimed by the Lake Shore, Cleveland and Pittsburg road has arisen as a result of the unexpected finding of an original deed of the entire western reserve, made in 1800. The deed is from President John Adams to the state of Connecticut and places as the northern boundary the center of Lake Erie. The ownership of the land made in the lake by the railroads is thus possibly the property of the heirs of the Connecticut Land company.

SAID TO HAVE HELPED CUT WIRES.

Grand Chief Ramsay, of the Railroad Telegraphers, to be Put on Trial.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Jan. 31.—A case of more than ordinary interest will come up for trial in the district court of Linn county, now in session at Marion. It is that of D. G. Ramsay, grand chief of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, on a charge of countenancing and lending aid in the wire cutting on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern road during the strike of the dispatchers and operators a year ago. Ramsay has employed eminent counsel, and the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern and Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railways have employed several prominent attorneys to assist in the prosecution.

After the strike had been won by the roads on October 1, 1892, the management of the roads at once began to work with a view of ultimately disrupting the order. During the strike wires were cut a number of times. It was charged at the time that it was the work of strikers, but no proof could be brought forward that such was the case until the October term of the Linn county court. Indictments have been returned against Ramsay on a charge of countenancing and lending aid in wire cutting on the Burlington road. The outcome of the trial will be awaited with much interest.

AFFAIRS AT RIO.

News of the Naval Battle Confirmed.

Admiral Da Gama Wants to Surrender to Admiral Benham, But his Officers Object.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—At the admiralty and the foreign office and all other government departments, the interview with Admiral Benham and the Associated Press representative at Rio de Janeiro was thoroughly discussed this morning and the attitude assumed by the United States commander was warmly approved. The Brazilian minister today in an interview with the Associated Press representative, expressed the belief that the end of the revolt was imminent, and said that even if Admiral Da Gama had not actually surrendered to the United States admiral, he had certainly announced his intention of so doing and the moral effect of his action would be the same upon the insurgents as if he had handed over his sword to Rear Admiral Benham. The Brazilian minister also said that if Admiral Da Gama finally surrenders to Rear Admiral Benham, that it is likely that he will be handed over to President Peixoto. "In any case," the Brazilian minister asserted, "the combined Brazilian government squadron is now approaching Rio De Janeiro and it is strong enough to compel the surrender of the rebels."

Lord Rosebery added that the British naval officer at Rio de Janeiro was giving the same protection to British subjects as other foreigners were receiving from the naval forces of the respective governments. The Globe says "If Washington authorities sanction Admiral Benham's action, England will be at direct variance with the United States on a vitally important provision of international law."

The Exchange Telegraph company says that dispatches have been received in this city today which appear to establish beyond a doubt that Admiral DaGama proposed to surrender to Admiral Benham and that he would have done so had it not been for the fact that his officers refused to permit him to carry out his intentions. It is also again announced here that Admiral DeMello has captured Curitiba and a large quantity of specie.

BUENOS AYRES, Jan. 31.—Dispatches received here from Rio de Janeiro say that the Brazilian insurgents are making preparation for a vigorous attack upon Santos and San Palo. The news that firing had taken place between the United States warships and the insurgent vessels seems to have been greatly exaggerated. The reports say that only signal shots were exchanged and that no shot was fired in real earnest. It is added that the insurgents feel very much discouraged at Admiral Da Gama's practical surrender to the United States admiral and it is reported that the younger officers are in favor of having Admiral Da Gama replaced by a younger and more energetic commander.

CARLISLE'S BONDS.

The Senate Resolution Forbidding Their Issue.

Senator Allen, the Nebraska Populist, Says That the Issue Will be Illegal.

WASHINGTON, Jan 31.—The religious societies appear to be making a systematic fight on whisky and beer and desire to tax those articles to such a degree as to make them prohibitory fixtures. Petitions were this morning presented by Senator Cullom, of Illinois, praying that the internal revenue tax on these articles may be trebled in the new tariff law.

The resolutions denying the authority of the secretary of treasury to issue the proposed United States bonds came up and Senator Allen, of Nebraska, took the floor to reply to the argument of Senator Sherman on yesterday. "The senator from Ohio," said Senator Allen in discussing this question, "yesterday said that the power of the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds was a continuing power and that it would continue until water ceased to run and time ends unless congress shall change or modify it by law. That law does not permit this construction. It provides for a single act of redemption. It provides that he may sell bonds for the purpose of making the redemption mentioned in the act. All through the act where the subject is referred to is conveyed the idea in plain language that it is a single redemption that it is to be made in this act. When that redemption was made the power to issue bonds ceased with it. Whenever this government called in the excess of three hundred million of outstanding treasury notes and redeemed or destroyed them, the power to issue bonds ceased."

GETTING POINTS.

Our City Treasurer at Indianapolis Learning About the City Charter.

LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 31.—The Central Trust company, of New York, this noon applied to the federal court for a receiver for the Colorado Midland Railroad company, which the trust avers will default on interest due tomorrow on some $1,800,000 of bonds. The court has taken the matter under advisement and will render a decision at this afternoon's session.

DIVORCE FOR DESERTION

Anna Russell Asks for a Divorce From Her Husband.

Henry Mugley is Adjudged Insane—An Allen County Forger Gets One Year in Prison.

Desertion, which is one of the most frequent grounds alleged in divorce cases, is the one given by E. V. Emrick, the attorney for the plaintiff, in the petition which he has just filed in the superior court asking that his client Anna Russell, may be granted a legal separation from her husband, Dominick Russell.

The complaint says that herself and the defendant were married in 1881 and lived together until about four years ago, when he deserted her and went to Chicago, since which time he has neglected in any manner to provide for her support and for this reason she asks for a divorce, and the custody of the two children, aged eleven and thirteen years respectively.

The defendant was a former employe of the Pittsburg shops in this city and Mrs. Russell and her children still live here.

ADJUDGED INSANE.

Yesterday afternoon Justices France and Wilkinson, with the Drs. Swearingen, held a commission in lunacy upon Henry Mugley, who is a patient at Hope hospital. He had become insane on religious subjects. He was so adjudged and will be sent to the asylum.

Samuel White sues James Baum, et al., to replevin furniture. Randall and Doughman are attorneys.

Charles F. Pfeiffer sues George Nill, et al., to quiet title to real estate. Randall and Doughman are attorneys.

The commissioners inspected the improvements at the county asylum yesterday. Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock they will hear all parties interested in the proposed bridge across the Maumee river on the east side.

The grand jury is called for Monday next. The case of Martin Howley, accused of murder; Al. Gregory, who tried to swindle the Princess cash store, and George Brown, accused of robbing the Gladieux grocery, will be investigated.

The jury of the Huntington circuit court, in the case of the state against Lon Ham, charged with having forged the name of Joseph H. Shoup, of Allen county, to a $20 note and of having passed the same to David H. Withrow in part payment for a pony, came in yesterday with a verdict finding Ham guilty on the second count of the affidavit, that of obtaining money under false pretenses, and fixed his punishment at one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary and $10 fine. Joseph H Shoup, of Huntington, testified that he signed the note, but Ham was found guilty on the charge, that he represented to Withrow that it was the signature of Joseph H. Shoup who lives just in the edge of this county.

SATOLLI'S SUCCESSOR.

Mgr. O'Connell Said to Have Been Appointed.

Mgr. Satolli Will be Elevated to the Cardinalate When He Returns to Europe.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 31.—The Journal, which has several times printed pieces of Catholic news before they had become known in the church, today prints an article asserting that Mgr. O'Connell, of the American college at Rome, and not Archbishop Ireland, is to become papal ablegate in America, in the approaching elevation of Satolli to the cardinalate. The Journal says that letters of a personal nature were received today from within the American collegiate stating that Satolli is to be given the cardinalate at the March consistory, but he is to remain in this country for a time to settle up several important matters now in his hands before turning the legacy over to O'Connell. The new legate is a liberal of the Ireland school and his appointment will be entirely satisfactory to the St. Paul archbishop as well as to Cardinal Gibbons, whose protege he is.

RABBI SAMUEL STRASS.

Sudden Demise of a Widely Known Hebrew Minister.

Taken Suddenly Ill and Expires Last Evening, at His Home—Funerals.

Last evening about 10 o'clock occurred the sudden death of Rabbi Samuel Strass, one of the oldest and best known Jewish rabbi in this part of the country. Death came to him almost like a flash and, although greatly advanced in years, he was apparently as well and sound as ever up to about 9 o'clock. He did not suffer with any of the infirmities due to old age, but his death was occasioned from acute neuralgia, which went to his heart. For some days he suffered with a slight cold and yesterday afternoon Dr. Wm. T. Ferguson, who has been Rabbi Strass' physician, called to see the old gentleman and left him a prescription. The patient was dressed and about the house. He was in excellent spirits and laughed and joked with the doctor about the hard times, saying, in fun, that he "would have to give him an order on the railroad for his pay." At supper the deceased was to all appearances in his usual health and ate a hearty meal. Later, while seated on a chair by the fire he fell over in a partially unconscious condition. The family were greatly alarmed, and, after having helped the sufferer to his bed, sent for the doctor at once. It was of no avail, however, for Dr. Ferguson saw at a glance that Mr. Strass was beyond mortal aid. Stimulents were applied, but the patient continued to sink until death came to relieve him. He regained consciousness just before he passed away and recognized his sorrowing family who were gathered about the bedside.

Had Rabbi Samuel Strass lived until Easter Sunday he would have been seventy nine years of age. He was born in Germany and received a splendid education, studying for the Jewish ministry and becoming a rabbi. Of his eight children all but the two youngest came to this country early in life and settled in Fort Wayne. In 1872 the Rabbi accompanied by his wife and the remaining members of the family followed the other children to this country and settled at Ligonier, where the deceased took charge of a congregation. About five or six years ago he came to this city with his wife and two daughters and has lived a quiet, retired life at No. 50 Lewis street.

The deceased was a man of scholarly abilities, possessed of those traits of character and those virtues which always commanded for him the respect and esteem of everyone and his death will be regretted by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He was a devoted husband, a fond and loving father, a true friend and in his social and religious life was one of the best of men. During the years of his ministerial labors as a rabbi he was eminently successful, and after his retirement from that sacred calling and his coming to this city, where he was surrounded by his children, he passed life pleasantly and frequently conducted services at the Achduth Temple. His home life was peculiarly happy, his daughters who lived with him and his other children contributing in every way to make his closing years ones of comfort and joy.

Rabbi Strass leaves a wife, Theresa, and his eight children are: Emanuel Strass, of this city; who travels for a Chicago firm; Charlotte, wife of David Redelheimer, of Monroeville; Mrs. Anna Strass, also of M[illegible]ille; Mrs Charles Kohn, wife of a Maumee avenue butcher, this city; J. L. Strass, a wholesale liquor dealer of Milwaukee. Isaac, who, with David Redelheimer, is interested in the overalls factory in this city; Julia and Kittie who are unmarried and reside at home.

The family asks THE SENTINEL to request friends not to send flowers. No arrangements have been made as yet for the funeral, but the services will be held at the house, probably on Friday.

THE FUNERALS.

The funeral of the late Emanuel Humler will be held on Thursday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, from the house, and at 1:30 from the Simpson M. E. church. Rev. Welch will officiate.

The funeral of the late Jonas Holmes will be held on Thursday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, from the residence, and an hour later from the Second Presbyterian church.

Last night occurred the death of Helen, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schmidt, of 120 West Third street. The funeral will be private from the house tomorrow. The child died of scarlet fever.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane McFarley took place at 10:30 this morning, from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. George McElfish, 20[illegible] West Washington street.

The funeral of Minnie Popple was held at 1 o'clock this afternoon, from St. Peter's Lutheran church.

The funeral of the late Michael Ryan will take place Thursday morning from the residence, No. 320 Lafayette street, at 8:30 o'clock. The services will take place a half hour later from St. Patrick's church.

Fire at Alliance.

ALLIANCE, Ohio, Jan. 31.—Fire broke out in the Reynolds & Brown block at midnight last night and was completely destroyed. [illegible] Charles Orehler, grocer; [illegible] milliner; J. W. Jones, shoe dealer, and McDonald's billiard parlors. The aggregate loss will probably reach $50,000, with insurance covering three-fourths.

A BIG DEAL.

Over Twenty-five Hundred Acres of Land Sold.

Omish Settlers Creating a Boom in Allen County Farm Lands—Romy & Bobilya's Purchase.

For the past thirty days there has been a big boom in real estate in Jackson and Maumee townships. Mr. R. L. Romy, of the firm of Romy & Bobilya, said this morning to a SENTINEL representative that in the past thirty days at least 2,500 acres of land had been sold in these two townships at between $13 and $25 per acre. The purchasers have been mostly Omish settlers. The Omish are a thrifty Swiss people who settled in the eastern states. As the sons have grown up their fathers have come west and purchased land for them to farm.

Yesterday Messrs Romy & Bobilya purchased section 5 in Jackson township, containing 645 acres, paying therefor $12,000. The land was purchased of Mrs. Nelson, who is a daughter of the late J. K. Edgerton.

This firm purchased the section for purely speculative purposes and have already sold a good many acres. Section 27 will probably be sold next week.

The Omish settlers have added greatly to the material prosperity of Allen county. They are among our best farmers.

STRICKEN DOWN.

Special Policeman Henry Stoll Taken Ill.

Later He Recovered and Went to Work—Sudden Attack of J. W. Sharp, in Lakeside.

Special Police Officer Henry Stoll was last night suddenly stricken down with what was at first supposed to be heart disease. About 8 o'clock he was in his brother's saloon near the Nickel Plate depot and was laughing and chatting with some friends. While standing at a "penny-in-the-slot" machine feeding in coppers for the cigars he was suddenly seen to stagger and fall heavily to the floor in an unconscious condition. He was picked up and carried to a chair, where he recovered somewhat. Later he was taken to his home and recovered sufficiently to go to work at the south depot.

ANOTHER SUDDEN ATTACK.

Last evening J. W. Sharp, aged seventy-eight years, was taken suddenly ill with sinking chills at the residence of his son, J. W. Sharp, at No. 73 Lake avenue, Lakeside. His life was despaired of for a time.

SYSTEMATIC RELIEF.

Donations of Articles for the Relief of the Poor.

FORT SENTINEL:

In order to control and systematize, as far as possible, the giving relief to the needy, the Central Relief committee and the Fort Wayne Relief union, after consultation and agreement, have arranged that all groceries and provisions shall be supplied by the Central Relief, the Relief union doing what it can in the way of visiting and investigating and of supplying clothing.

There are, doubtless, many people who have clothing, boots and shoes which would be of use to others if the proper disposition could be made of them. Such donations, especially children's clothing, will be gladly received by the Relief union. If any one who desires to have a package called for will notify one of the directors of the society or send a postal to the superintendent of the Relief union, 111 Pritchard street, with name and address, the collection will be made as soon as possible.

Some valuable donations have been received from church societies and others who have met and got in order clothing collected, thereby adding very materially to the intrinsic value of the gift.

There was never a better time than now to push needed public improvements.

The show windows of many of our stores are filled with valentines. Two weeks from today is St. Valentine's Day.

Busy may bob up and talk about the Corbett-Jackson fight being had there, but they count without their hosts, for Governor Matthews will spoil their scheme.

Warsaw is making bids for both the democratic and republican congressional conventions, and promises good entertainment and courteous treatment to delegates.

Let the work of paving West Washington street be done and done, too, as soon as possible. The unemployed need work and it can be given them by making public improvements.

At the congressional elections held in New York city yesterday L. E. Quig, republican, was elected in the fourteenth district and Isadore Strauss, democrat, in the fifteenth district.

Logansport investors in Gas City property are very much encouraged by the active preparations that are being made by the factories to resume business. Nearly all the mills are starting up.

One thousand saloons have gone out of business at Chicago during the last three months. If the remaining thousands went out of business in that city Chicago would be a good deal better off.

Eggs are selling for 9 and 10 cents per dozen at the smaller towns. At this price they are much cheaper than meat. There should be plenty of eggs this year as there were so many chickens raised last year.

The Bluffton News is making arrangements to print a large edition of conference dailies, giving full proceedings of the North Indiana M. E. conference which meets at that place beginning on April 11.

The steady improvement in business is manifest. It is no longer denied, even by the calamity howlers, who have done very much to retard it and are still supplying the chief element of disturbing doubt.

Mrs. Helen M. Gougar will be the editorial writer of the new prohibition paper which will commence publication at Indianapolis on the 1st of March. The publication will be called "The Flying Wedge."

Indications are that a large number of delegates and members of the association will be in attendance at the convention of the Indiana division of the Travelers' Protective association which will be held at Lafayette in May.

At the meeting of the Democratic state central committee at Indianapolis tomorrow new officers will be chosen and the time fixed for holding the next state convention. It is probable that the convention will be held in May.

The editor of a contemporary sarcastically announces that he wants to buy a bag of flour, a pair of shoes and a winter hat, and is ready to receive lowest bids for the same. He says that's the way some merchants do by him when they want $2 worth of job printing.

The members of the city council are asked every day why the work which that body ordered on the reservoir is not done. Let the street commissioner arise and explain. It can not be on account of the weather. The unemployed men of the city want work, and the taxpayers want to know why these improvements are not being pushed.

Having decided to make improvements around the reservoir in the southern part of the city, the work should be done at once. The principal reason for making these improvements was to give work to the unemployed of the city now—not next summer, when they may not need it. Let this reservoir work be pushed to completion now.

That the senate committees are now examining with more deliberation than usual the nominations sent to the senate by the president is evidenced by the fact that there are about forty of these which were sent to the senate before the Christmas holidays which yet remain unacted upon, the nominations which were made during the extra session and were again made at the beginning of the present session.

A peculiar charity is that undertaken literally by Cornelia Bradford, sister of a New York divine, who proposes to bury for $20 in decent style any deceased person whose family gives her the trust. Miss Bradford says truly that expensive funerals are among the curses of the poor. She will also loan money at 4 per cent. in small sums to relieve actual distress, but reserves the right personally to investigate the character of borrowers.

The mayor and councilmen of Dunkirk are in a quandary. The city is hardly a year old, and is now wrestling with a knotty question that may need the opinion of the attorney general to settle. Some time after the legislature of 1893 passed the McHugh municipal bill extending the terms of city officers, the city of Dunkirk was organized and councilmen elected. In the council long terms and short terms were decided by lot, and now they are wondering whether they have to elect councilmen this spring to succeed the short termers, or wait until '95. They have written all the leading legal lights in that section of the state, and the opinions given are quite conflicting.

A bill of interest to inventors has been introduced in congress by Mr. Hall, of Missouri, by request. It provides that two or more patents may be obtained for an invention whether it is capable of division mechanically or on physical lines, or the applications differ merely in the form or scope of claims presented; provided that the patents be issued on the same day, or if not the latter ones shall be only for the unexpired term of the former. Where two or more patents differing in form or scope of claims or otherwise have been issued, the patentee may waive so much of the term of the latter patents as extends beyond the expiration of the earlier; that all shall expire together and the validity of the latter shall not be affected by the existence of the first patent.

Nicaragua and Honduras are fighting because Zelaya, the dictator president of Nicaragua, harbored and encouraged last summer the fugitive rebels who had tried to overthrow the government of President Vasquez of Honduras. If Zelaya had merely given refuge to the revolutionists, that would have been no more than England does to political refugees from all the countries of continental Europe. But Zelaya not only gave a home to the rebels; he also endeavored to bolster up their cause and help them overturn the government of Honduras, his neighbor and a friendly power. Therefore Honduras is at outs with Zelaya and Nicaragua. Nicaragua has all the disaffected exiles from Honduras to help her against their own country. In fact, it is the cause of the revolutionists that the government of Zelaya is championing, and it is the Honduras rebels, with the Nicaraguan army at their back, who are opening the war against Honduras. Meantime the powerful and unscrupulous Barrios, dictator president of Guatemala, has promised to aid Vasquez of Honduras, while the republic of Salvador, with its dictator president, Ezeta, is expected to back Nicaragua and the Honduras rebels.

The former lofty secretary of legation in London, Mr. Henry White, who advised Embassador Bayard to get a house as far removed from the legation buildings as possible, so as to be free from Americans, will remain in London, where he belongs. It will now be seen whether he derived the distinction which he claims he won in his office as secretary of the legation or whether he acquired it by his own genius. The result will probably disappoint Mr. White more than anybody else. It is expected that during the fashionable season he will be at home in his London house to all except Americans. The Americans can stand it if Mr. Henry White can.

It will be a good appointment, that of Hon. W. I. Buchanan of Iowa, lately chief of the live stock department of the World's fair, to be minister to the Argentine Republic. The man who managed the live stock shows at the exposition so admirably is well fitted to be our representative in a republic where the raising of cattle, sheep and horses is one of the chief industries. A live man instead of a perfunctory old fossil, either as foreign minister or consul, can make himself uncommonly useful to his country.

A member of parliament predicts that "Down with the lords!" will be the battlecry of the mass of British voters at the next general parliamentary election. It seems written in the book of fate that the hereditary house of lords of Great Britain will disappear early in the twentieth century and an elective body take its place, if indeed socialism has not already engulfed the world in its embrace.

Filling the Corpus Delicti.

"Hello!" exclaimed the stranger as he stood looking out the window of a little western saloon absently whistling "After the Ball." "There's a funeral."

"Yaas," responded the barkeeper. "Plenty most every day now."

"Who's dead? D'ye know?"

"A tenderfoot who came out to this here town a week ago today," laconically answered the barkeeper.

"H—m," mused the stranger, already suspicious from the tone of the saloon keeper's voice. "How did he die?"

"From heart failure—and a load of bucks" and the barkeeper winked to himself.

"What was the cause of the—a—heart failure—horse stealing?"

"Nope."

"Murder?"

"Nope—worse than that."

"Run off with another fellow's wife?"

"Nope—worse still than that."

"Well, what in thunder did cause it?"

"He introduced 'After the Ball' to this here innocent town." And the barkeeper continued to polish the glasses softly.—Chicago Tribune.

Hunting a Fight in Arizona.

A Chicago man whose business takes him to Arizona two or three times a year was relating a few choice experiences in that new country to a group of friends last evening.

"When I first went there," he said, "I was always willing to engage in a fight, as I had a sneaking ambition to be a sort of Wild Bill. I used to go into saloons and announce that I would shoot any man who refused to drink with me. Somehow they never refused, and I found it mighty hard work to get up a row. But when I am anxious for a scrimmage now I have no difficulty in getting it."

"What do you do?"

"I go into a saloon and try to drink alone."—Chicago Tribune.

OLD-TIME SCHOOLS.

HOW GRANDFATHERS' IDEAS WERE TAUGHT TO SHOOT.

The Temples of Learning Sixty Years Ago—The Guides Up the Hill of Knowledge—His Rod and His Spelling-Book—Former Not Spared.

The Old Teacher.

To the majority of young people of the present generation the old-time school and schoolmaster are absolutely unknown, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The present system of education is in truth an evolution, but the process has been so rapid that the well-lighted, well warmed and every way comfortable and convenient schoolhouse of the present has little resemblance to the loghouse, with its one door and utter absence of comfort, from which the school of to-day may be said to have sprung. But just as a civilized nation may find profit in looking back on the steps by which it emerged from barbarism, so the educators and the educated of the present may take pleasure in seeing the advancement that has taken place in a profession that interests everybody, an advancement that has been realized in the memory of men still living.

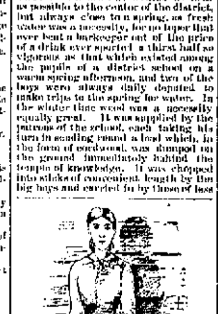

During the first third of this century school houses were tolerably abundant, but as the majority of the people lived in no great degree of comfort, they did not deem it necessary to provide their children with any superfluities, nor to establish the school in any better edifice than that owned by the majority of those who lived in the district and patronized its educational establishment. Generally, therefore, the district school house was of logs, or, at best, of boards, and built by the common labor of the community. But then, as now, what was everybody's business was nobody's business, and as the whole district was interested in keeping the school house in repair, nobody did the work, and in course of time, and generally no long time at that, it fell into a condition not far removed from ruinous. The "master," being employed only by the term, and feeling no particular interest in the building, generally forbore to complain, lest his patrons should conceive that he was "stuck up," so made only such repairs as were absolutely necessary. When a log rolled away, leaving a large hole in the wall, he and some older boys filled it with mud; if the house were frame, and a board cracked or a knot fell out, he nailed a bit of board from the end of a flour barrel, or a barrel-stave, or a clapboard, or a shingle over the aperture to keep out the wind during his term of office. When the log that had for a generation done duty as a step gave out he shoved a large stone into position, and thus, little by little, the house got old and shabby.

Its grounds were always spacious, for the pupils generally had all outdoors to play in, there being, as a rule, no inclosing fence, a fact always greatly to the advantage of strolling swine, that, when the house had a floor, as it sometimes had, formed a comfortable nest underneath for the sake of the shelter and warmth, and often, by their noisy disputes as to which should have the inside place in the pile, disturbed what little pretense of order existed among the pupils. The school house was located as near as possible to the center of the district, but always close to a spring, as fresh water was a necessity, for no labor that ever bent a barkeeper out of the price of a drink ever spurted a thirst half so vigorous as that which existed among the pupils of a district school on a warm spring afternoon, and two of the boys were always daily deputed to make trips to the spring for water. In the winter time wood was a necessity equally great. It was supplied by the patrons of the school, each taking his turn in sending round a load which, in the form of cordwood, was dumped on the ground immediately behind the temple of knowledge. It was chopped into sticks of convenient length by the big boys and carried in by those of less advancement, a roaring fire being deemed one of the necessities of educational progress. And so it was; for most of the pupils were compelled to walk a considerable distance in order take their daily dose of birch and education, and much direct warmth was needed. No anthracite stove for them, with its slow, even radiation; what they wanted was a heat that was almost enough to form a "crackling" on one-half of their bodies, and if, at the same time, the other half was freezing, that fact was regarded as a dispensation of Providence against which there was no remedy.

When the master was a man he was often some farmer's son of the neighborhood who, having ambition above that of his fellows, had determined to "read law" or to study medicine, and resorted to school teaching for the purpose of suporting himself until fitted for the practice of his profession. Women teachers were not in favor, there being a prevalent idea that they were not strong enough to thrash the boys as the boys ought to be thrashed, and so were relegated to the teaching of summer terms, which were attended only by little boys whose big brothers were at work on the farm, and little girls whose older sisters were at home helping their mothers in the household work. The main reliance of the neighborhood in an educational line, however, was some old fellow who had come down from a former generation as a teacher, and who, like Goldsmith's pedagogue, with words of learned length and thundering sound, could amaze even the old farmers of the neighborhood and cause them to assign him a place of honor only a little lower than that reserved for the circuit preacher, who, once or twice a month, came round to eat their chicken and administer a dose of gospel.

These hoary guides up the hill of science were always highly honored for their ability to preserve order in their educational institutions, which they did by an unsparing use of the birch. "Spare the rod and spoil the child" was a maxim forever on their lips, and no child ever spoiled on their hands for want of its observance. A threshold about six feet long stood constantly in the corner of the room to be appealed to in extreme cases, but for ready use a lighter weapon was always in hand. They were choice in selection. Peach tree switches were rejected as being too limber; a good stout birch, or in default of it, a plum switch, would coil around the legs of the offender and extract the most ear-splitting yells and howls, without leaving much impression on the cuticle. This instrument of torture was applied on any provocation at all, on the theory that anything the youngster did deserved a thrashing, and that if he had not done anything he might at any moment do something and thus deserved, on general principles, to be trounced anyhow. Thrashing, therefore, was his main hold for securing not only the respect and obedience but also the affectionate regard of his pupils, but in facetious moments he would sometimes devise milder punishments, such as standing in the corner, sending a boy to sit among the girls, or a girl to sit among the boys, a proceeding that was certain to cause the sheepish sufferer much anguish of mind and resulted in hiding the face behind the upraised elbow, a gesture that has not yet passed out of use in our schools.

There were no "frills" on the old pedagogue's learning. He taught the three R's—reading, writing and arithmetic—otherwise and more frequently known as "ciphering." In the early days of this century, artificial appliances for educational purposes were few in number, and if every two of the younger pupils, the abecedarians, as they were called, had a spelling-book, the supply was deemed quite adequate.

Spelling was done by a primitive method—a distinction was made between the capitals and the small letters, the former being designated as "big." In spelling Aaron, for example, the pupil was taught to say "Big A, little a, r-o-n, ron, Aaron." The final letter of the alphabet was designated as izzard, sometimes contracted to zed. When a vowel of itself constituted a syllable that fact was stated in the spelling, according to the formula, "a, by itself, a," but rapidity of pronunciation and the natural course of abbreviation soon shortened this to "a bissel pha," so that in spelling acre, for example," the general effect would be "a bissel pha, cr-e, ker, acre. ... o, over, this performance would be varied to "O bissel pho, v-e-r, over."

The crowning event of the day was the spelling class, participated in by all the members of the school save the smallest. In this field parade of his force, the old schoolmaster lined up all his pupils, male and female, causing them to toe the mark made on the clap-boards composing the floor. This was for the purpose of securing discipline, and with a long wand in hand he would zealously watch the line while giving out the words to be spelled, occasionally administering a smart tap to an offending toe that transgressed by crossing the limit. The words were "given out" from the spelling-book or dictionary, if the teacher had one, and were spelled in turn by the pupils, who went up or down according to their success in spelling. Rigid rules of procedure were laid down. The word must be pronounced clearly after the master had given it out, and each syllable must be religiously repeated, with idiotic precision, after it had been spelled. Not only so, but with each, every preceding syllable must also be conjoined or the result would be a "miss," no matter whether the word had been correctly spelled or not. Thus, "Constantinople, C-o-n Con, s-t-a-n stan, Constan, t-i ti, Constanti, n-o no, Constantino, p-l-e ple, Constantinople!" The competition incited by these spelling matches was very hot, and as there was usually some small incitement besides in the way of honorary mention or occasionally even a prize at the close of the term, the interest was generally intense.

Arithmetic was taught from one book, the teacher's. Each pupil who had advanced so far provided himself with a half quire of common letter paper. This was folded in half and sewed at home by one of sisters. The teacher announced the rule under which the examples, or "sums" as they were called, were to be performed, and each pupil wrote the words as directed by the master. After the rule had been clearly written at the top of a page the "sums" under that rule were also given out and in turn placed in the manufactured book. At the conclusion of the term each pupil thus had his own arithmetic, that is, as far as he had gone, for classification was almost unknown, and in a school of twenty pupils forty classes were by no means uncommon. Writing was done from a copy set by the master, the writing or copy books being of the same nature as the arithmetic folio. The home flock of geese was plundered for pens, and when the feathers were brought to the school by the pupils, they were manufactured into pens by the ready knife of the master, before whom always lay a pile of pens that "would not write," and consequently needed immediate attention. Progress in "ciphering" seldom went further than the rule of three, and the opinion among scholars as to the merits of arithmetic in general was very aptly expressed by a bit of doggerel:

Multiplication is a vexation,
Division is as bad;
The Rule of Three it puzzles me,
And practice makes me mad.

The school day began when the master got to the house in the morning and ended at about "two hours by sun," in order that the boys might have time to get home, feed the stock, water the horses, and milk before night. "Turning out the master" was practiced even in better communities, as a recognized method of obtaining a holiday, and on such occasions the oldest boys went early to school, entered and barred the door against the pedagogue until he made terms.

It is very important to understand the meaning of words when dealing with some people. An oil dealer sold some winter oil that was warranted to stand the severest cold. Shortly afterward it froze stiff. The purchaser went to the vender with loud complaints. "I told you it would stand the coldest weather," said he; "I didn't tell you it would run." This reminds us of the farmer who did not care to tell his inquisitive neighbor where he was riding so early in the morning, and when the question was put, he replied, "After my horse," and drove off. Mr. Inquisitive saw the point of the joke after his neighbor was out of sight.

"So your son John is courting a woman at last! I'm afraid, however that he'll be too bashful to propose to her." "He won't need to propose; she's a widow."—New York Press.

CHINA'S CURSE.

Opium Is Ruining the Land Where the Plant Grows.

"Seven-tenths of the people of China are opium smokers, and 2,000,000 of them die annually from its effects," recently remarked a missionary, who has spent twenty-two years of his life in the Flowery Kingdom. "This habit is rapidly growing. It is confined to no class or sex, but men and women, officials and coolies, use it alike. As soon as opium smoking becomes a confirmed habit with a Chinese coolie he knows that he has about ten years to live. That seems to be the average. I consider it easier to reform a sot in the gutter, one of your lowest types of drunkards, than an opium smoker. Place them behind iron bars if you like, and after being imprisoned a short time they begin to beg and plead for opium. They rave like maniacs and their sufferings are terrible to behold. They act like wild men.

"The opium vice is ruining China. The people know it and the government knows it, but they take no action. In twenty-two years it has increased 50 per cent. Fertile fields that were once used in the cultivation of rice are now growing the opium weed. The provinces in Northern China, where the terrible famine occurred a few years ago, and where thousands perished for want of food, had been for years given over to the production of food grains. When food was short the people found they could not live on opium, so they starved to death. A parallel to the suffering during that famine is hardly equaled by any event in the history of the world. Human beings died in the streets of villages and on the roads. People turned cannibals. Some dug up roots, and others were found on the roadside, where they had died biting the bark of the trees. The dead were not buried, for the living had all they could do to take care of themselves.

"Now, today rice is one-third higher in price than it was a score of years ago, because the crop has fallen off. Opium shops are everywhere. You may be traveling along with your chair coolie, when the first thing you know he will put you down and leave you sitting in the streets while he goes in to take a smoke."

Healthfulness Can Be Preserved

in malarial districts by the powerful tonic and alterative effects of a daily dose of Simmons Liver Regulator, the true malarial antidote.

About a year ago I took a violent attack of la grippe. I coughed day and night for about six weeks; my wife then suggested that I try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. At first I could see no difference, but still kept taking it and soon found that it was what I needed. If I got no relief from one dose I took another, and it was only a few days until I was free from the cough. I think people in general ought to know the value of this remedy, and I take pleasure in acknowledging the benefit I have received from it. The persistent cough which usually follows an attack of the grip can be permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. W. A. McGuire, of McKay, Ohio, says: "La Grippe left me with a severe cough. After using several different medicines without relief, I tried Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which effected a permanent cure. I have also found it to be without an equal for children, when troubled with colds or croup. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by druggists.

RAILWAY AFFAIRS.

Important Suit Affecting the Northern Pacific Road.

Accidents, Incidents and Personal Mention Gathered About the Railroads and Shops.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington this morning is as follows: "Probably the most important interest affected by the delay of the senate in giving a full bench to the supreme court is the settlement of the titles to mineral lands along the Northern Pacific railroad. By its charter this road was given the alternate sections of land forty miles each side of its tract, excepting the mineral lands, but the question has arisen in numerous law suits whether the title was for those sections which were known to contain mineral deposits when the grants took effect, or also for all lands in which mineral deposits has since been discovered. Circuit court decisions have placed the first construction upon the grants, and there has been a test case of Richard P. Borden against the Northern Pacific before the supreme court for more than a year. This case has been once argued, but is now sidetracked to await the confirmation of a justice. Upon its decision depends the title to all the recently discovered mineral wealth along the Northern Pacific for an eighty mile belt across the whole width of the state of Montana and part of Idaho."

THE ACCIDENTS OF DECEMBER.

In December there were 166 railway accidents on the roads of this country, in which thirty-one persons were killed and 209 injured. The accidents included eighty-four collisions and seventy-seven derailments. Indiana roads were remarkably fortunate, only four of these accidents occurring on Indiana lines, and neither very serious in character. In commenting on the accidents of last month the Railroad Gazette makes the following suggestive remarks: "The total number of accidents is smaller than before in the same month for five years, and that the number of employes killed is much smaller than in any December shown in our comparisons. The total number killed—employes, passengers and others—has not been so small in any month since April, 1890, when we recorded only fifteen under this head; and it has not been so small in any winter month since February, 1889. The average number of employes killed in train accidents each month since the beginning of 1890—four years—has been forty-two and one-half. A single month is too short a time from which to draw conclusions of much value, but it is doubtless true that the great falling off in business throughout the country, reducing the number of trains run, and often also the amount of work to be done by the men who do run, has been a chief factor in producing this exceptional December record. Many men have been discharged and, of course, every superintendent discharged the poorer ones where he could, thus raising the average efficiency of his force. Reductions in passenger service contributed to the general safety by throwing many experienced men back into the freight train service. The strain on the men has been moderated both by the smaller amount of work to do on the road and, in the case of men running first-in first-out, by the longer intervals between trips. To these factors there would be added, by some superintendents, the smaller quantities of beer drank by some men, in consequence of their reduced income."

THE LAKE SHORE'S EASTERN EXTENSION.

It is said that $100,000 is to be expended on improvements of the Dunkirk, Allegheny Valley and Pittsburg railroad between Dunkirk and Warren. The line extends from Dunkirk to Titusville and the announcement is said to mean the beginning of the extension of the Lake Shore to connect with the Beech Creek and the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg systems at Dubois. Plans are in hand for four new steel bridges on the Dunkirk, Allegheny Valley and Pittsburg, and contracts are made to lay eighty-five pound steel rails along the line. The road was built as a feeder to the Lake Shore from the hemlock timber region, and later got a big business from the oil country. The cutting down of the forests and the decline in oil had their effect and, in order to make it pay, it is proposed to extend it to Dubois. The road has already a line graded within six miles of Oil City, where work was stopped because of an injunction secured by the Oil Creek road, now a part of the Western New York and Pennsylvania, which has just been dissolved.

MINOR MENTION.

Road Foreman A. Tolhamus is in Chicago today.

Ed Maxwell, formerly of the Organ factory, took a position at the electric light works this morning.

The Pittsburg, the Wabash and a part of the Bass works are closed today, consequently shop news is scarce.

G. J. Pond, of New Haven, clerk in the Wabash office, attended the Masonic exercises at Auburn last evening.

Of the twenty-one theatrical troupes which have been carried between Louisville and Chicago this month eighteen went over the Monon.

The Wilkes Refrigerator car company has placed an order with the Missouri Car and Foundry company for 450 new refrigerator cars, 60,000 pounds capacity.

Joseph Slater has returned from Dayton, Ohio, where he spent a few days in the interest of the Bass company.

A bill is before the legislative bodies of Ohio reducing the rate of fare on all railroads over eight miles long to 2 cents a mile.

Eugene V. Debs organized a lodge of the American Railway union at Frankfort, Ind., Saturday last. Sixty-eight charter members were secured.

Supt. of Telegraph Pharo and his gang of workmen who had been engaged in raising the Wabash wires west of the city, left for Decatur, Ill., this morning.

Wabash passenger train No. 43 ran west in two sections last night. The necessity for two trains was brought about by delay on the Lake Shore with the mails.

Machinist Adolph Fromuth, of the Bass works, went to Rushville, Ind., this morning, where he will set a large Corliss engine, built in this city, in operation.

All kinds of traffic is falling off at an alarming rate on all roads. If business continues to decrease more trainmen will be dismissed from the service, and that, too, very shortly.

Joseph Billingham, formerly master mechanic of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe, has been appointed master mechanic of the shops of the Baltimore and Ohio at Garrett, Ind.

Fred Hilgemann, of the shipping department of the electric light works, who has been off duty since the holidays on account of diphtheria in his family, resumed work this morning.

The Olds wagon works will be closed tomorrow to allow the employes to attend the funeral of their late shopmate, Michael Ryan. The men will turn out and march in a body in the procession.

The material for the new Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railroad shops at Lafayette, Ind., has commenced arriving on the grounds. The company has decided to put $10,000 worth of machinery in the shops.

Charlie King, of the Bass offices, is in receipt of a letter from O. L. Wilmott, dated Chattanooga, Tenn. Mr. Wilmott says he arrived safely in that city and believes that the climate will be beneficial to his health.

A dispatch from Noblesville, Ind., says that the Modes Glass factory will start at Cicero February 15, and will employ about 300 hands. This is a new factory, and its starting will do much toward aiding the unemployed in that section.

Anna Kistler, of Fremont, Ohio, has secured a judgment against the Nickel Plate road for $12,500. This was a suit for personal injuries sustained June 2, 1892, by being struck by a freight train while crossing the company's track near Green Springs.

The force in the shops of the Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City at Frankfort, Ind., will be increased February 10. There is a large amount of repair work to do, but the company has not had the money to pay the men, so light has business been.

Asa Roebuck, of Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory, has been summoned to Decatur, Ind., where his father, Thomas Roebuck, lies at the point of death. The old man is one of the pioneers of Adams county, having resided there nearly sixty years. He is now over eighty-five years old.

The Lake Erie and Western has in service an engine which David Macy purchased in the early fifties when president of the Indianapolis, Peru and Chicago, now part of the Lake Erie and Western system, and in the repairs made to it but few pieces have been changed for new ones.

A passenger coming in on the Wabash train from the east last night says that No. 43 struck a buggy on one of the crossings in Defiance, Ohio, and killed one of the occupants of the vehicle. Inquiry at the Wabash depot this morning failed to confirm the report and the story is thought to be untrue.

The aggregate earnings of railroads reporting for January to date is $14,847,135, a decrease compared with last year of 11.1 per cent. A slight improvement from earlier reports is to be noticed. Whether it is due to an enlargement of business, more stable rates or the fact that the open winter has not interrupted traffic as storms and blockades about a year ago did, cannot be positively determined. Probably all three causes contributed to the improvement.

A special meeting of the passenger department of the Central Traffic association will be held at Chicago tomorrow for the purpose of giving effect to the agreement adopted by the presidents at their meeting in New York last week. The meeting will try to agree on the percentage of the business which each road will receive. If this cannot be done the matter will be referred to arbitration for final decision, the finding of the arbitrators to be final and to stand for a year.

The freight officials of the Central Traffic association and the trunk lines are assembled in Chicago today to consider the new freight agreement. The plan provides for a varying system of rates, somewhat similar to that adopted for the passenger business, and for a diversion of business to the weaker lines when necessary to even up traffic. The agreement will cover all east-bound freight traffic from points in the Central Traffic association territory. Questions in dispute will be referred to arbitration under the rules of the association. The arrangement of details is left with George H. Blanchard, commissioner, who issued the call for the meeting for the purpose of beginning the work.

In the district court at St. Paul yesterday Judge Willis declared the Minnesota anti-ticket scalpers' law unconstitutional, holding that the entire act is controlled by unconstitutional provisions. The case came up on the arrest of C. F. Corbett, a ticket scalper, for the sale of a railroad ticket without having a license, and it will go at once to the supreme court.

Notwithstanding the alleged "hard times" travel on the railroads is nearly if not quite as great as it was immediately following the holidays of former years. Perhaps the local business of the present winter is not up to the standard, but through business, on the other hand, is unusually heavy, particularly that to the Pacific coasts. F. W. Gardner, local ticket agent of the Nickel Plate, said last night that his company was doing a much heavier passenger business this winter than they expected. Grafton's California excursions bring the road a great deal of through business. The fifth excursion of the series passed through this city Tuesday morning with forty-two in the party. Other excursions will be run on February 12 and 26, and March 12 and 26. On these excursions the Krabel parlor observation cars are used.

HOME DYEING MADE EASY.

Handsome Colors That Never Fade.

Its Easy to Dye With Diamond Dyes—Black for Cotton, Wool and Silk That Does Not Crock—Makes Old Cloaks, Gowns and Suits Look Like New.

"It is really marvelous," said a Calhoun street druggist, "how the hard times have increased the sale of diamond dyes. Ladies buy one package as an experiment, and find the dye so easy to use that they color all their old clothing, and come out with new gowns, cloaks, and suits for the whole family. The diamond black dyes seem especially popular, I often selling half a dozen packages to one customer."

For more than ten years diamond dyes have been the favorite family dyes in Fort Wayne, and although imitation package dyes have been offered for sale, on account of their inferiority to the diamond in strength, fastness, and beauty, they could not get any lasting sale.

Diamond dyes are put up in over fifty different colors for wool and silk, with special dyes for cotton. Their fast black dyes are so simple and easy to use that even a child can dye a perfect color with them, one that will not fade, crock, or wash out. There are three different kinds (for wool, for cotton, and for silk and feathers), and they all make a full, rich black equal to the handsomest shade made by the professional dyes.

Having failed to bring on a general European war, the able foreign correspondent has now turned his attention to producing universal bankruptcy and revolution. According to the program mapped out Crispi is to be proclaimed dictator of Italy, and King Humbert will probably come to Chicago and peddle bananas. Castelar will run things in Spain and the little King will be sent to an orphan asylum. The correspondent has not yet decided upon a dictator for Austria, being unable to make a choice between Edward Strauss and a man that runs a beer cellar on Der Graben. Franz Josef must pack his freight, however, and the young Kaiser is booked for exile, tšo. Some minor details remain to be arranged as soon as the correspondent gets completely sober, but the main plan is fixed and unalterable. All the European potentates are flat broke and the kingdoms are going into the hands of receivers, a la Freudenthal, Frankenthal & Co.

The Goose Holds High.

Says the goose to the rooster:
"You are taller than I,
And you're awfully stylish
With your head held so high.
You have the advantage
Of me, in a scratch,
But I bet I can beat you
In a fast swimming match."

Couldn't Stand Cigarettes.

Willie and Gertrude.

It was night.

The weather was bitter cold.

"Oh, Willie!" said little Gertrude, "what shall we do? We are so poor that we have no fuel with which to cook a porter-house steak for our dear mamma."

"And it is no use for us to try to borrow from the neighbors."

"No. There is nothing left to borrow."

"Where is the cat?" asked little Gertrude.

"Here," replied Willie.

"Put her up on the woodshed and twist her tail."

Willie did so.

In a short time the windows of the neighborhood opened and bootjacks showered down. Gertrude gathered them up and said:

"There, Willie; put the kitty carefully away; we may need her again when these bootjacks are burned."

Was not Gertrude a wise little girl to profit so well by what she read in the comic papers?—Washington Star.

Teddy's Medicine.

Teddy had a very sore throat, so he had to take some medicine every two hours. It did not taste bad at all, but still it was medicine; so Teddy thought he must make a face whenever he took it, and mamma must give him a lump of sugar, and pity him a great deal besides.

But once when mamma gave him the medicine, Teddy did not make a face nor ask for any sugar.

"You are getting used to it, aren't you, Teddy?" said mamma.

"Well, not 'zactly," said Teddy; "but I've been thinking. You see, Jack an' me used to go to the nasturtium bed and eat the seeds. My! they 'most bit my tongue off! But we just ate 'em for fun.

"Then we used to go down by the brook and eat wild grapes. They were so sour they made my teeth feel just like the crazy-bone in your elbow when you hit it; but I thought it was fun to have 'em feel so.

"Then we used to eat acorns; oh, ain't they bitter! But we just ate 'em for fun.

"So I make believe that I'm taking this medicine for fun, and then it tastes all right."

Mamma kissed the philosophical little invalid, and said he should have the sugar all the same.—Youth's Companion.

Hops in California.

California takes the lead among the hop-growing States and hop-growers there are a prosperous class. The acreage devoted to hops in New York and Washington is greater, but the greatest increase in product and the highest average to the acre is to be found in California. The hot, dry climate of that State furnishes the indispensable requisites for successful hop-growing. The high winds, blight and mildew of other countries have no existence there, and the vines are totally exempt from the hop louse which has lately done such serious damage in Washington and Oregon. The superior size and flavor of Pacific coast hops recommend them to eastern and foreign purchasers and the exports to those markets are rapidly on the increase. Hops commonly bear prolifically the second season in California and remain prolific for upwards of ten years.

Significant Experiments with Bacilli.

The latest scare in microbes has been started by Professor Uffelmann of Rostock, who infected a letter with cholera bacilli and put it into a post bag. When the letter was taken out, twenty-three and one-half hours later, the bacilli were still there. Bacilli were also found living on post cards twenty hours after infection. The microorganisms were found to die rapidly when placed upon coins. A fly charged with cholera bacilli was afterward placed on some beef. A little later the meat was found to be swarming with bacteria. A finger was infected with cholera bacilli and dried. One hour later the finger was rubbed on some roast meat, and numerous bacilli developed subsequently.—Scientific American.

Hats Which Cost $500.

The Mexican sombreros are built on a plan to stand wind and weather for many summers, and the hat without its gaudy trimmings often weighs several pounds, but stretched around it is a band of gold or silver, wrought in the highest style of the jeweler's art, and the edge is trimmed in a design to match the band of cord. So it is easy to see how $500 can be put in one hat to be sold, perhaps, to a vaquero, whose entire possessions outside of it may be equal to only one-fifth of its cost. But Mexicans run to strange ideas, judged from our own standpoint. And their ideas have permeated certain of the Western States, where cowboys hold sway, and where $200 saddles are often seen on $20 horses.

He Saved His Body.

Handsome Will Hudson, a murderer, was hanged at Cartersville, Ga., in an open field, with 3,000 persons present. During his incarceration he prepared a statement of his case, which was printed in book form, together with his picture. As he stood upon the gallows he sold these books to the crowd at twenty-five cents apiece, to raise money, as he put it, "to keep my body from those infernal medical students. I want a decent burial." When there seemed to be a letup in the sale he took to writing his autographs on the books to make them go faster. After he had raised enough money he was hanged.

Man's Three Ages.

A rather good anecdote appears in a recently published book. Says an Irish farmer to his son: "You see, my boy, a man's life naturally divides itself into three distinct periods. The first is that in which he is plannin' and contrivin' all sorts of villainy and rascality; that is the period of youth and innocence. The second is that in which he is puttin' into practice the villainy and rascality he contrived before; that is the prime of life or the flower of manhood. The third and last period is that in which he is makin' his soul and preparin' for another world; that is the period of dotage."

How to Preserve Celery.

Housewives are greatly troubled over the fact that celery spots and turns brown after being kept a short time. This tendency can be stopped for several days and the celery kept fresh. First tie up the stalks in dark-brown paper and then roll in a towel; keep in a cool, dark place; before preparing them for the table place the celery stalks in a pan of cold water and allow them to remain there an hour. Thus kept and treated the celery will blanch and when ready to eat will be finer than when bought.

A Child Enjoys

The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effect of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use; so that it is the best family remedy known, and every family should have a bottle.

Popular prices and popular opera draw a large and intelligent audience to the Temple last evening, nor was this audience disappointed, for they anticipated something good and their expectations were surpassed, for excellent was the universal verdict. Mascot, with its catchy music, its pretty costumes, and the vein of humor that pervades it, never seems to grow old and when rendered by such a company as Deshon's, its true worth is presented. The company is a first class one and though the price of admission has been placed so low, yet it is equal to the best operatic organization that has visited our city. Handsome and talented male artists, beautiful and graceful ladies and a chorus of highly trained voices are here grouped. The company will remain at the Temple the balance of the week in which time they will present the well known and musical operatias so much appreciated.

A very enjoyable pedro party was given last evening by Miss Jennie Wright, at her home, 46 Pritchard street. The prizes were won by Miss Kate Ryan and Mr. John Wolf. The guests were Misses Maggie Hagan, Maggie McNulty, Sadie Reitz, Emma Stolzaupy, Anna Snyder, Clara Kratze, Nellie Conroy, Jennie Hagerman, Mr. and Mrs. Hogan, Mrs. Kratze, Mr. and Mrs. Meyers, Messrs. John Raidy, John Meyers, John Williams, H. Hogan, W. Baer, J. Baer, D. Pettit.

A most delightful party was given at the home of Master James Fox, on Brackenridge street, last evening. The hours were spent in dancing and games. Those present were Misses Bertha Bouse, Lottie Eike, Leona Ashley, Annie Maginnis, Maggie Mahoney, Nell Weaver, and Messrs. C. Jocquel, Ed. Tansey, C. Nolan, J. O'Brien, Peter Logan, James Fox.

The regular semi-annual meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Third Presbyterian church occurred last night and the following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. M. Moon.
Vice President—E. C. Schulze.
Secretary—Miss Anna Kensill.
Treasurer—Clifford Wallace.

It was decided last evening that the society would prepare for a special Christian endeavor meeting to be held in the church Sunday evening, and to take the place of the regular preaching service.

The poverty party given last evening at the home of Miss Matie Christie, corner of Creighton and Hoagland avenues, was a very pleasant affair. The guests wore costumes appropriate to the entertainment and carried their own luncheon. Those present were Misses Emma and Edna Austin, Clara and Esther Greenawald, Norea McNutt, Matie Christie, Millie Burbank, Mable and Grace Crosby, Daisy Summers, Messrs. Charles Crist, Henry McNutt, J. Gearing, D. D. Greenawald, F. Austin, W. Burbank, Frank Getz, T. Miller, K. Sterling.

A new game is brought out this winter, modeled after the old one called "Consequences." This is called "The Reviewers," and is played as follows: Every member of the party is provided with a sheet of note paper. A writes the title (real or imaginary) of a book, folds it down and passes it to B, who gives it another, covers it and gives the paper to C, who adds a motto. D writes an opinion of the press, E a second, all that has gone before being unknown to the players. The writers then change places and papers are passed around once more, so that there may be fresh reviewers for each paper. Finally the papers are read aloud.

SEARS WINS.

The Supreme Court Sustains the Lower Court's Decision.

The Pennsylvania Company Will Now Have to Hand Over a Check for $5,000.

Indianapolis, Jan. 31.—After nearly seven years of continuous litigation it seems as if Oliver B. Sears would at last get his judgment of $5,000 against the Pennsylvania railroad company. Sears lives at Menton, Kosciusko county, and was a freight brakeman, running between Fort Wayne and Chicago on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad. In 1888 he was knocked off a refrigerator car by a bridge, which is held to have been a dangerous obstruction, and badly injured. He obtained a verdict for $5,000 in the lower court and the railroad company carried the case to the supreme court, where the finding was affirmed last year. The company petitioned for a rehearing and a decision handed down yesterday overruled their petition. Sears has written probably fifty letters to the clerk of the supreme court asking about the case. He has lost lots of sleep over the litigation.

The Comma Bacillus.

Much gratitude is owing to the six doctors of the Institute of Experimental Pathology in Vienna who have been trying risky experiments upon themselves with the comma bacillus in the interest of science. It is satisfactory, however, to know that, although each person swallowed a large number of the bacilli contained in fluid, in no case did Asiatic cholera ensue. Dr. Hasterlik and his assistant remained in their normal condition; Dr. Stockmayer suffered from headache, slight fever and insomnia; Herren Schnetz and Graf, two medical students, had slight purging, and Herr Hese, a gentleman of a somewhat weak constitution, who also volunteered, suffered from nausea and vomiting, but was perfectly well again within a week. The conclusion drawn by Prof. Stricker, who directed the experiments, is that in persons not physically strong the comma bacillus causes various symptoms of illness, but not necessarily cholera.
